Mr. Abesser-No; it was on my own behalf. Mr. Hastings-Did you tell the Consul that the lebt was for goods day to your firm? Mr. Abeaser I said it was for goods; that the compreders owed us the amount for goods. I cannot say exactly what I told him without my books. I gave my instructions by letter to the German Consul at Canton. His Lordship said -It strikes me that if this is substantially your debt I will have to make an injunction. It would be more satisfactory. I think, if you made an undertaking not to procoed at all. I have considerable sympathy with you, because I know Chinese bankrupts often behave badly, and I have no sympathy with the man who pays only 7 per bent. But it is English law that if any man proves a certain amount he elects to abide by the bankruptcy, and although we cannot stay proceedings in the Chinese Courts we can exercise jurisdiction in this Colony. I am bound to administed the law as it is, and not in accordance with any feelings or sympathy I have on the subject; and, therefore, if it appears that this is your debt—if the correspondence with the Garman Consul, the books of the firm, and the evidence of the com have no option but to grant an injunction. That that exists there, and the fears that some hostile is why I suggest an undertaking on your part not to proceed further. You would have to hand over whatever you got for the good of the other oreditors. I have no desire in a matter of this sort to go into your books and correspondence. I understand you may hive been hardly used and I do not wish you to incur any expense that he should accept your undertaking that these proceedings, whatever they are in the Chinese yamens, should not be carried any further, and that you will instruct the German Consul to that effect. I sould not give costs. against Mesers, Scheele and Co. in a case of this sort, because I have no sympathy with people who pay only 7 per cent.; I do not care what their condition may be. And, besides, there is something in the conduct of the bankrupts themselves which is not very satisfactory. They have got the protection of the Court here and have left matters as they were for the last two years If my suggestion is satisfactory to both > sides that is what I would propose to do; at least, I cannot do it, but I make the suggestion. Mr. Hastings-It is not simply that they must not go on with these proceedings, but that they must withdraw them formally. Mr. Abesser undertook to do as his Lordship Mr. Hastings-I will be quite satisfied with

His Lordship-I think it is the hest way. carnot holp thinking in some cases people ought to know that when they come and prove in a bankruptcy and agree to accept a dividend whother they get 99 per cont, which know is exceedingly rare, or only 2 or per cent., which I am sorry to say is exceedingly common, they mist abide by it whatever it is. They cannot come and proceed in a British Court and then proceed in the Courts in foreign countries, whether in China or elsewhere, which places creditors in Hong-kong at disadvantages. People living in China would prove debts in Hongkong and go and enforce payment in Ohine, a d, the same effect is not paid in Chinese Courts to adjudication in
